

I am writing in reference to changing Indiana telephone privacy act to one that will diminish it. I have appreciated Indiana's act that saves me from having to run to the phone for anywhere from 6 to 10 calls a day, to maybe 1 a week. It is nice to be able to sit down to dinner with my family and not have to be aggravated with calls (seems like this was a main time for several of the calls). Businesses should not be allowed to hassle people at their homes for things that they are not at all interested in. Harrasment is against the law, and that is what these phone calls are.
